Amarillo Design Bureau is excited to announce a new online store is now available. It can be found at www.starfleetstore.com.

This updates the look and feel of the old cart and will give you a better shopping experience.

New features include the ability to review our titles. We hope that you do that so as to build up a good information base for new and returning players.

From this point forward, the cart will remember what you have ordered.

When you log into the new store for the first time, you will need to tell it you forgot your password. While your account information was transferred, your password was encrypted and could not be. We are sorry for the inconvenience, but your online security is of utmost priority with us.

We hope that you find the experience to be enjoyable. We know that not everything is perfect yet, so you can either use the “Contact Us” link on the cart or email us at marketing@starfleetgames.com.

We wanted to make your experience on our websites www.StarFleetGames.com and www.FederationCommander.com as easy as possible, but there are lots of links to the old shopping cart. We are working diligently to change those to the new shopping cart, but it may take a while. The work starts on the evening of May 31, 2016 and will continue until we find them all. You can report broken links to marketing@starfleetgames.com.

Let us know what you think, good or bad. We’ll try to mitigate the bad and reinforce the good things.
